Herbaceous Ornamental Perennials For Display Gardens

Dr. Mark Bridgen Assistant Professor of Floriculture

As interest in herbaceous perennials continues to grow, novice gardeners, as well as the experts, are planning their gardens to display plants in categories or groups. Some of the categories include: full sun plants, shade plants, biennials, rock garden perennials, edging plants, evergreen plants, ground covers, cut flowers, dried flowers and fruits, perennials grown for their foliage, herbs, plants for wet soils, plants for dry soils, plants to attract birds, bees and butterflies, fragrant plants, plants for the seashore, urban perennials, low maintenance plants and, of course, perennials of different colors.

In the Connecticut Greenhouse Newsletter, Vol. 155:11-14, lists of perennials for cut and dried flowers were given. This article pertains to herbaceous perennials for display gardens. Specifically, tables with perennials for ground covers, low maintenance gardens and fragrance are presented. Future articles will continue to list plants according to category.
